Parents are The First Looking Glass of Their

Children. If you want to be in your child's mind, you must be in his life. No matter how many quarrels there may be between you (husband and wife), everything has to be resolved, only thinking about the child. Parenting is a concerted effort; parenting is not just the name of a separate effort. Improper parenting of children can lead to irreparable damage. Look, after the birth of our child we start teaching them to walk and talk from an early age. We start saying, say son, let's go, let's go. But after a while when they learn to speak and walk, just then we start saying sit quietly, sit quietly. That means, we forbid both speaking and walking. So why did we teach them to speak and move from childhood? "Don't teach your child what should he think, but teach him how to think."

Because, A Badly Parented Child is a Lost Child.

How much time your child will spend with you in your old age depends on how you are parenting him. Have a good time with the child, because it will be a permanent memory of his brain and he will not forget you even if he wants to, he will come back to you out of affection.

The adverse effects that poor parenting can have on your child

Having poor social skills Being unreliable Being unstable Being careless Being argumentative Being rigid
Being rude
Being undisciplined Having antisocial behavior Being Ioner

Being pessimistic
Having self-defeating thoughts Being secretive
Having fear of failure.

Children are more inclined to imitate adults than to listen to them. That means children love to imitate. They will not do exactly what his parents tell him to do. But children will learn to do things just as parents do. The children just won't listen when you say them, when you do, the children will accept it on their own. Because children know how to imitate, they don't know how to listen. So don't just give them instructions, give them inspiration. You will see if you notice. Your child is copying what you are doing.
